About the Artist

Jayne Dyer is an Australian artist based in Beijing and Sydney. Her more than 20-year practice includes museum and commercial exhibitions and commissions, with funding and residencies from government and corporate agencies.

Dyer is internationally focused and committed to inter-cultural exchange, particularly between Australia and Asia. She undertakes hybrid, often multidisciplinary, collaborative projects and lives for extended periods in countries undergoing massive economic and environmental change.

Her framework is underpinned by an insistent question - what is valued? She considers the veracity of individual and cultural assumptions about what is, and what constitutes, permanence and endurance. Her art works point to the inevitability of change and imminent states of collapse.
